Welcome to the Callan Method

Learning English with the Callan™ Method is fast and effective!

The Callan Method is a teaching method created specifically to improve your English in an intensive atmosphere. The teacher is constantly asking questions, so you are hearing and using the language as much as possible. When you speak in the lesson, the teacher corrects your grammar and pronunciation mistakes, and you learn a lot from this correction.

The Callan Method teaches English vocabulary and grammar in a carefully programmed way, with systematic revision and reinforcement. In the lesson, there is a lot of speaking and listening practice, but there is also reading and writing so that you revise and consolidate what you have learned.

With the Callan Method, the teacher speaks quickly so that you learn to understand English when it is spoken at natural speed. This also means that everyone is concentrating hard all the time.

English in a quarter of the time

The Callan Method can teach English in a quarter of the time taken by any other method on the market. Instead of the usual 350 hours necessary to get the average student to the level of the Cambridge Preliminary English Test (PET), the Callan Method can take as little as 80 hours, and only 160 hours for the Cambridge First Certificate in English (FCE).

The method is suitable for students of all nationalities, and ages. It requires no equipment (not even a whiteboard) or other books, and can be used for classes at private schools, state schools and universities. It is also possible for students to use the books to practise with each other when they are not at school.

In addition to this, students can practise their English online using the interactive exercises, which are available to students who study at licensed schools. Ask your school for details.

The Callan Method in practice

A Callan Method English lesson is probably very different from lessons you have done in the past. You do not sit in silence, doing a reading comprehension test or a grammar exercise from a book. You do not have 'free conversation', where you only use the English you already feel comfortable with. Of course, activities like this can help you, but you can do them at home with a book, or in a coffee bar. In a Callan Method lesson, you are busy with important activities that you cannot do outside the classroom. You are listening to English all the time. You are speaking English a lot, and all your mistakes are corrected. You learn quickly because you are always surrounded by English. There is no silence and no time to get bored or lose your concentration. And it is also fun!

So, what exactly happens in a Callan Method lesson, and how does it work?

The teacher asks you questions

The Callan Method books are full of questions. Each question practises a word, an expression, or a piece of grammar. The teacher is standing, and asks the questions to the students one by one. You never know when the teacher will ask you, so you are always concentrating. When one student finishes answering one question, the teacher immediately starts to ask the next question.

The teacher speaks quickly

The teacher in a Callan Method lesson speaks quickly. This is because, in the real world, it is natural to speak quickly. If you want to understand normal English, you must practise listening to quick natural speech and become able to understand English without first translating into your language. This idea of not translating is at the centre of the Callan Method; this method helps you to start thinking in English.

Also, we do not want you to stop and think a lot about the grammar while you are speaking. We want you to speak as a reflex, instinctively. And do not worry about mistakes. You will, naturally, make a lot of mistakes in the lessons, but Callan Method teachers correct your mistakes, and you learn from the corrections. When you go home, of course it will help if you read your book, think about the grammar, study the vocabulary, and do all the things that language students do at home – but the lessons are times to practise your listening and speaking, with your books closed!

The teacher says every question twice, and helps you with the answer

In the lesson, the teacher speaks quickly, so we say the questions twice. This way, you have another chance to listen if you did not understand everything the first time.

The teacher then immediately says the beginning of the answer. This is to help you (and 'push' you) to start speaking immediately. So, for example:

Teacher: "Are there two chairs in this room? Are there two chairs in this room? No, there aren't ..."

Student (immediately): "No, there aren't two chairs in this room; there are twelve chairs in this room."

If the teacher does not 'push' you by giving you the beginning of the answer, you might start to think too much, and translate into your language.

The teacher will speak along with you all the time while you are saying your answer. So, if you forget a word or you are not sure what to say, you will always hear the next word or two from the teacher. You should repeat after the teacher, but immediately try again to continue with the answer yourself. You must always try to continue speaking, and only copy the teacher when you cannot continue alone. That way, you will become more confident and learn more quickly. Never simply wait for help from the teacher and then copy – you will not improve so quickly.

Long answers, with the same grammar as the question

We want you to practise your speaking as much as possible, so you always make complete sentences when you speak in the lesson, using the same grammatical structure as in the question. For example:

Teacher: "About how many pages are there in this book?"

Student: "There are about two hundred pages in that book."

In this way, you are not just answering a question; you are making full sentences with the vocabulary and the grammar that you need to learn.

Correction by imitation

With the Callan Method, the teacher corrects all your mistakes the moment you make them. The teacher corrects you by imitating (copying) your mistake and then saying the correct pronunciation/form of the word. For example, if you say "He come from Spain", the teacher quickly says "not come - comes". This correction by imitation helps you to hear the difference between your mistake and the proper English form. You should immediately repeat the correct word and continue with your sentence. You learn a lot from this correction of your mistakes, and constant correction results in fast progress.

Contracted forms

In the lesson, the teacher uses contractions (e.g. the teacher says "I don't" instead of "I do not"). This is because it is natural to use contractions in spoken English and you must learn to understand them. Also, if you want to sound natural when you speak, you must learn to use contractions.

Lesson structure

Every school is different, but a typical 50-minute Callan lesson will contain about 35 minutes of speaking, a 10-minute period for reading, and a 5-minute dictation. The reading practice and the dictation are often in the middle of the lesson.

In the reading part, you read and speak while the teacher helps you and corrects your mistakes. In the dictation, you practise your writing, but you are also listening to the teacher. So, a 50-minute Callan lesson is 50 minutes of spoken English with no silence!

No chatting

Although the Callan Method emphasises the importance of speaking practice, this does not mean chatting (free conversation). You learn English quickly with the Callan Method partly because the lessons are organised, efficient, fast and busy. There is no time wasted on chatting; this can be done before or after the lesson.

Chatting is not a good way to spend your time in an English lesson. First, only some of the students speak. Second, in a chat, people only use the English that they already know. Third, it is difficult for a teacher to correct mistakes during a conversation.

The Callan Method has none of these problems. All through the lesson, every student is listening and speaking, practising different vocabulary and structures, and learning from the correction of their mistakes. And nobody has time to get bored!

Repeat, repeat, repeat!

Systematic revision

In your native language, you sometimes read or hear a word that you do not already know. You usually need to read or hear this new word only once or twice in order to remember it and then use it yourself. However, when you are learning a foreign language, things are very different. You need to hear, see and use words and grammatical structures many times before you really know them properly. So your studies must involve a system of revision (repeating what you have studied before). This is absolutely essential. If there is no system of revision in your studies, you will forget what you have studied and will not be able to speak or understand better than before.

In every Callan Method lesson, of course you learn new English, practise it, and progress through your book. However, you also do a lot of revision so that you can really learn what you have studied. Your teacher can decide how much revision your class needs, but it will always be an important part of your studies.

Also, because there is a lot of revision, it is not important for you to understand everything the first time; it gets easier. The revision with Callan is automatic and systematic. Every day you do a lot of revision and then learn some new English.

Revision in reading and dictation too

The reading and dictation practice in the lessons is part of Callan's systematic revision as well. First, you learn a new word in the speaking part of the lesson; a few lessons later, you meet it again when you are reading; finally, the word appears in a dictation. This is all written into the Callan Method; it happens automatically.

Correcting your dictations

With the Callan Method, there is little or no homework to do, but it is very important that you correct your dictations. These are printed in your book and so you can easily correct them at home, on the bus, or wherever. It is important to do this because it helps you to learn the written forms of the words you have already studied in earlier lessons.

Your first lessons with the Callan Method

During your first lesson with the Callan Method, all of the questions and some of the vocabulary are new for you; you have not done any revision yet. For this reason, the teacher may not ask you many questions. You can sit and listen, and become more familiar with the method - the speed, the questions, the correction etc.

History of the Callan Method – Robin Callan

Robin Callan is the creator of the Callan Method. He owns the Callan School in London's Oxford Street. He also runs Callan Publishing Limited, which supplies Callan Method books to schools all over the world.

Robin Callan grew up in Ely, Cambridgeshire, England. In his early twenties, he went to Italy to teach English in Salerno. Although he enjoyed teaching, Robin thought that the way in which teachers were expected to teach their lessons was inefficient and boring. He became very interested in the mechanisms of language learning, and was sure that he could radically improve the way English was taught.

He remained in Italy and started to write his own books for teaching English. He used these in his own classes and, over the following ten years, gained an immense amount of practical experience and a reputation for teaching English quickly and effectively.

When he returned to England, he opened his school in Oxford Street. As the method became more and more popular with students, the school grew and moved to larger premises. Robin continued to write his Callan Method books, and today the method is used by schools all over the world.

Robin Callan has always been passionate about English literature, especially poetry. For this reason, he bought The Orchard Tea Garden in Grantchester, near Cambridge, which attracts thousands of tourists each year. Throughout the 20th century, it was a popular meeting place for many famous Cambridge University students and important figures from English literature, such as Rupert Brooke, Virginia Woolf and E.M. Forster. Today, it is also home to the Rupert Brooke Museum.

Mr Callan now lives in Grantchester, but still plays an active role in the management of the Callan School in London.

The Callan School in London's Oxford Street

The largest private school in London

The Callan School in Oxford Street is the largest private school in London teaching English as a foreign language. Depending on the time of year, the school employs between 60 and 100 teachers and has an average of 1600 students passing through its doors every day. This number rises to more than 2000 in the middle of summer, similar to a small university.

How Callan Method Stages compare to CEFR* levels and University of Cambridge General English exams

 Common European Framework of Reference*

It is difficult to compare the Callan Method books directly with the CEFR levels and Cambridge exams, but below is an approximate guide.

Introduction to Stage 12

In Stages 11 and 12, listening and speaking practice is done in the same lively manner as in the other Callan Method stages, and you also continue to do readings and dictations. However, Stages 11 and 12 are different from Stages 1–10 in two ways: they contain extra exercises to practise vocabulary, and they have sections to help you with writing.

Exercises

These introduce new words, phrases and expressions, and they also practise vocabulary you've learned already. Each one takes about five minutes to do. Don't worry if you aren't sure about the answers; the idea is that you will learn by firstly doing an exercise and then going through it with your teacher. They are exercises, not tests.

There are three kinds of exercise – phrase exercises, word-building exercises, and word pool exercises.

In the phrase exercises, you choose one word (from a choice of four) to fit in a gap in a sentence. The exercises practise new uses of words you already know, or introduce common phrases and expressions with words you have learned before.

In the word-building exercises, you are asked to take a word you have learned before (e.g. "real", from Stage 4) and make a new word from it (e.g. "realistic").

Finally, in Stages 11 and 12 you will sometimes come across a word pool – a list of 15 words that the teacher will introduce to you. A few lessons after this, there will be a word pool exercise, which checks whether you have remembered the words. Each exercise has 15 sentences with a word missing. You have to complete each sentence by choosing the correct word from the word pool.

Writing Sections

In total, there are eight writing sections in Stages 11 and 12. They introduce you to various common types of writing that we all meet in everyday life, and which also appear in English language exams. In addition to giving you helpful advice, the sections provide examples of each type of writing, and also homework that you can do to practise outside school.

STAGE 12

LESSON 178

Word pool 1 (nouns)

flaw	heir	escalator
gadget	maid	flair
dormitory	client	academy
victim	penalty	recreation
bench	napkin	suburb

the bigger … the more …

When we are comparing only two people or things, it is possible to use the word "the" in front of a comparative adjective rather than a superlative adjective. For example, "I have two bedrooms in my flat. The smaller of the two is used as a store room".

Give me an example of the word "the" used in front of a comparative adjective instead of a superlative adjective. Of the two restaurants on this street, this one is the more expensive comparatively

Give me an example of the word "comparatively", please. For a lady of 92, her eyesight is comparatively good

1076 economic economical

cutback cut back

The word "economic" means "related to money or the economy". For example, we can say "The country is facing severe economic problems". The word "economical", on the other hand, means "providing good value" or "requiring less money than usual". For example, we can say "The car cost quite a lot to buy, but it's very economical to run".

Do governments sometimes introduce cutbacks in public spending during an economic crisis? Yes, ...

If, for some reason, you personally needed to start living more economically, what would you cut back on? If, for some reason, I ..., I'd ...

explosion massive

Can a gas leak in a building cause a massive explosion? Yes, ...

anniversary

What kind of things do married couples get up to on their wedding anniversary? Married couples ...

flatter compliment chat up

What does the verb "flatter" mean? The verb "flatter" means to praise someone or pay them compliments to make them feel good about themselves

1077 Name a common situation when someone might choose to flatter the person they're talking to. A common ... when they're hoping someone will do them a favour, or when they're chatting someone up

Do you think it's true that we only flatter people when we want something from them? Yes, ... ~ No, ...

diet gradual cut out

When someone goes on a diet, is it healthier for them to lose weight quickly or gradually? When ..., ... gradually

Have you ever deliberately cut something out of your diet in an attempt to improve your health? Yes, ... ~ No, ...

What?

If the plot of a film is tricky to follow, do you tend to keep watching to the end or give up halfway through? If ..., I tend ...

What would you do if you found out that someone was plotting to murder you? If I ..., I'd ...

1078 Is it the practice in this country for some people living in flats in town to have a plot of land somewhere on which they grow fresh fruit and vegetables, for example? Yes, it's the practice ... ~ No, it isn't the practice ...

What are such plots of land called? Such ... allotments head for

In the morning, is the road outside this building full of people heading for work? Yes, ... ~ No, ...

capture torture

Are there international laws in place these days to ensure that soldiers captured during a war are not tortured by the enemy? Yes, ...

under control out of control

reality fully

Why is it important for a government to give the impression that the economy is fully under control even when, in reality, it may not be?

It's important ... so that the public maintain their faith in the government and support them

If the driver of a bus you were on suddenly had a heart-attack and the bus went out of control, what would you do?

If ..., I'd push the driver aside, put my foot on the brake and steer the bus to the side of the road

1079 tone

Which actor or actress do you think has the nicest tone of voice?

I think ... has ....

Do you set your phone to use specific ring tones for certain people so you know who's calling you?

Yes, ... ~ No, ...

interact interactive layout

How can the layout of an office influence the way people work?

The layout ... by affecting how easy it is for people to interact and access equipment

Why do children prefer interactive museums to traditional museums?

Children ... because they enjoy taking part in activities and seeing what happens when they press buttons on exhibits

vice

What do you think is your greatest virtue, and what's your greatest vice?

Is there any type of food you exclude from your diet to avoid problems with digestion? Yes, ... ~ No, ...

What?

aggressive aggression growl

Do airlines give their crew members training in how to cope with aggressive passengers? Yes, ...

When does a dog growl? A dog growls when it wants to show aggression in the event of helpless

If a country had no army, would it be completely helpless in the event of a military attack? Yes, ...

Give me another example of "in the event of". In the event of an emergency, please alert a member of staff immediately join in

Why do some children at primary school find it hard to join in with others in the playground? Some ... they aren't used to interacting with other children, they're shy etc.

1086 instruct instructor

The verb "instruct" means "teach" but is generally used to describe teaching someone how to perform an activity. For example, we can say "The staff were instructed on what to do in the event of a fire".

Do you think you'd enjoy the job of driving instructor? Yes, ... ~ No, ...

Why or why not?

moist moisten lick

How do we moisten stamps so that they stick to envelopes?
We moisten ... by licking them occasional outbreak

Give me an example of the word "occasional", please. I have the occasional pint of beer at the weekend

Are there occasionally serious outbreaks of flu in the world that cause a large number of deaths? Yes, ...

plunge

When swimming in a lake, why should one enter the water carefully rather than just plunge in? When ..., ... because the water may be too shallow, or there may be rocks close to the surface of the water

1087 register premises

Why are visitors often asked to register at reception when they enter the premises of a big business? Visitors are ... for security reasons troublesome

Do you think your parents would describe you as having been a troublesome child? Yes, ... ~ No, ...

alter philosophy

Why does a person's philosophy on life often alter significantly as they get older? A person's ...

detached	semi-detached	terraced

bungalow	mansion	drive (driveway)

go for

What's the difference between a terraced house, a semi-detached house, and a detached house?

The difference ... a terraced house shares a wall with another house on both sides, a semi-detached house shares a wall on one side only, and a detached house stands on its own and doesn't share a wall with any other property

Why might a bungalow be a good choice of accommodation for an elderly person?

A bungalow ... because a bungalow is on one level and has no stairs to climb 1088 Which is most likely to have its own drive (or driveway): a mansion, a bungalow or a terraced house?

A mansion ...

If you had the choice, which would you go for: a mansion in the countryside or a luxury apartment in town?

If ..., I'd go for ...

bug	virus	bacteria

defect (n)	microphone	embassy

What's a bug?

A bug can be an insect, a minor illness caused by a virus or bacteria, a secret hidden microphone (in an embassy for example) or a defect in a computer program

Does it bug you when people have loud mobile phone conversations on public transport?

Yes, ... ~ No, ...

Would you know what to do if your computer were infected by a virus?

Yes, I'd know ... ~ No, I wouldn't know ...

swap

Would you be willing to swap your phone (watch etc.) for mine?

Writing a story

Please note: There are writing homework titles at the end of this book.

sequence set the scene departure gate

boarding pass devastated

(1) It's normal to use contractions when we write a story.

Always check!

I was finally off to my brother's wedding. I'd never had the opportunity to visit New York before and I could hardly wait. I had a while to wait before boarding so, in the meantime, I sat in one of Heathrow Airport's many coffee bars to watch the planes taking off.

(2) Linking expressions that communicate 'time' and 'sequence' ideas are especially important.

(3) Use the past simple to communicate the main events in the story.

Before long, my flight was announced, and I quickly made my way to the departure gate. I was standing in the queue when suddenly my stomach turned over. Where was my boarding pass? And my passport?

(4) Use the past continuous to set the scene and give background information.

I ran like I'd never run before. In my mind, I could still see my passport and boarding pass lying on the coffee bar table. I 'd left them there in my mad hurry to get to the gate in time. How could I be so stupid!

(5) Use the past perfect to mention something that happened at an earlier time.

I burst into the coffee bar and went immediately to the table I'd been sitting at; my documents weren't there! I stood there in silence, devastated.

"Is this yours, sir?" said a voice behind me politely.

(6) Make descriptions more interesting by using adjectives and adverbs.

I turned to see a smiling waiter, and in his hand, a British passport with a boarding pass sandwiched between its pages.

"Yes! Oh, thank you," I replied. "Thank you so much!"

"You're very welcome," he said calmly. "Now, you'd better get going, hadn't you, sir?" I took the documents and set off back, possibly even faster than before. I arrived, completely out of breath, just as the staff were about to close the gate.

"Wait!" I called out desperately, opening the passport at the photo page as I approached them. I looked down at the face in the picture. It wasn't mine.

When we're writing a story, is it normal to use contractions? Yes, when ...

Which kind of linking expressions are especially important when we're telling a story? The kind ... ones that communicate 'time' and 'sequence' ideas

Give me some examples, please. before long; three weeks later; meanwhile etc.

Writing an essay

Please note: There are writing homework titles at the end of this book.

An essay:

- is a short piece of writing that presents ideas on a particular topic and discusses them. The writer reaches some kind of conclusion at the end;
- is usually written by students (at school, college or university) for a teacher, professor etc.

"For young single adults, living alone is a better option than sharing accommodation." Discuss.

Most young single adults live either with family members or friends. However, these days, many are choosing to live on their own.

One advantage of not sharing accommodation is that you have control over your time. You can go out with friends whenever you like, but if you want a quiet evening with a book or film, for example, you can have it; there is nobody around to interfere with your plans.

Another benefit of living alone is that you are not forced to put up with other people's annoying habits, whether it is dirty plates in the sink or loud music late at night. Living alone means you automatically avoid the awkward conversations and arguments that housemates often have about things like this.

On the other hand, sharing accommodation with others is normally far cheaper than living alone, and this is a major advantage. Rent is cheaper as it is shared among everyone in the property, and heating and electricity bills are also lower for the same reason.

(1) Start with general information that introduces the topic of your essay.

(2) Each paragraph should focus on a particular point, or aspect of the topic, that you want to discuss.

(3) Make your ideas clearer by illustrating them with examples.

Furthermore, living with other people means you are likely to have a more sociable lifestyle. Of course, you can invite friends round when living alone but, in a shared house or flat, everybody else's friends come to visit too and you get to know more people. Perhaps more important than this, though, is that there is nearly always someone around to chat with if you feel lonely. Unlike someone who lives alone, you do not need to make arrangements to meet.

(4) Put closely related points together in the same paragraph.

In conclusion, I feel that living alone is not the best option. Humans are social animals, and I would always prefer to be around friends or family, despite how annoying they can occasionally be.

(5) Make sure your own personal opinion is clear in the conclusion.

What do we mean by an essay? By an essay, we mean a short piece of writing that presents and discusses ideas on a particular topic, and reaches a conclusion

And who are essays usually written by? Essays ... students at school, college or university

How does an essay normally start? An essay ... with general information that introduces the topic of the essay

Writing an article

Please note: There are writing homework titles at the end of this book.

journal blog factual eye-catching

An article:

- is normally published in a magazine, newspaper or journal, or on a website such as a blog. It can be about any topic;
- usually contains factual information about the topic, but also gives the opinions of the writer and even other people;
- should be interesting/useful, as the reader has no obligation to keep reading;
- can have a number of different purposes (to inform, entertain, advise etc.);
- can use a formal, neutral or informal style, depending on where it will be published and who will read it.

approach systematic do your utmost socialize keep at

(1) Make sure you have an eye-catching title that also gives information about the topic.

So many English Words!

When you're learning English, how can you possibly remember every word you come across? You can't, but here are some suggestions to help you acquire the vocabulary you need.

(2) Get the reader's attention by having an interesting first sentence or introduction paragraph.

Firstly, outside school, only learn what's useful. Everyone knows how it feels to be chatting in English and suddenly realize you're missing a really important word. In my view, one great idea is to use a notebook or an app on your phone to jot down such words in your own language. Then, later, look them up in English and record them in a 'personal vocabulary book'. When reading, you should take a similar approach. Look up words, but again, only record what you think will come in handy later. There's no point learning high-level or specialized vocabulary you'll never need again. Another important thing is to be systematic. Decide how you're going to record words – by topic, by date, or maybe just alphabetically. By all means use more than one method, but be organized.

But to remember words, revision is the answer. Why not create a numbered card filing system with ten words or so and their translations on each card. You carry one card with you every day, and test yourself to see if you know the items on it, and try to use them in conversations too! The next day, you study a different card, and so on. But you need to return to each card regularly, and revise until you know all the words on it.

'Talk' to the reader directly by using the pronoun "you" where appropriate, and by using the imperative for giving advice etc. This helps to keep the reader interested.

Above all, never forget that practice makes perfect. So, do your utmost to write and speak English regularly. Visit internet chat rooms, socialize with people who can speak English, or, best of all, find a job where you'll speak English sometimes.

Finally, never give up! The more words you know, the easier it is to remember new ones. So get organized, keep at it, and before long you'll be communicating like a native!

Where are articles normally published? Articles ... in a magazine, newspaper or journal, or on a website such as a blog

How can we decide whether to write an article in a formal, neutral or informal style? We ... by thinking about where it will be published and who will read it

Why should we try to make an article interesting to read? We ... because the reader has no obligation to keep reading

What should we put at the start of an article? At the start ..., we should put an eye-catching title and an interesting first sentence or introduction paragraph 1159 Why is it a good idea to use the pronoun "you" where appropriate? It's ... because it helps to keep the reader interested alight — fire brigade

LESSON 189

1175 Reduced relative clauses

prepositional phrase omit

Sometimes, we can reduce the length of a relative clause that contains the verb "be" by omitting the relative pronoun and the verb "be". Three common situations in which we can do this are:

1) When the main verb in the relative clause is in the continuous form. For example, instead of saying "The girl who is wearing the yellow hat is my sister", we can say "The girl wearing the yellow hat is my sister".

2) When the main verb in the relative clause is in the passive voice. For example, instead of saying "The teenagers who were arrested will probably go to prison", we can say "The teenagers arrested will probably go to prison".

3) When the relative pronoun and the verb "be" are followed by a prepositional phrase. For example, instead of saying "The pen which is on the table is mine", we can say "The pen on the table is mine".

How can we sometimes reduce the length of a relative clause that contains the verb "be"?

We can ... by omitting the relative pronoun and the verb "be"

What's the first common situation in which we can do this?

The first ... is when the main verb in the relative clause is in the continuous form

So, what can we say instead of "The children that are going on the trip tomorrow are very happy"?

Instead of ..., we can say "The children going on the trip tomorrow are very happy"

1176 What's the second common situation in which we can reduce a relative clause?

The second ... is when the main verb in the relative clause is in the passive voice

So, what can we say instead of "You get a discount on any purchases that are made before the end of the month"?

Instead of ..., we can say "You get a discount on any purchases made before the end of the month"

What's the third common situation in which we can reduce a relative clause?

The third ... is when the relative pronoun and the verb "be" are followed by a prepositional phrase

So, what can we say instead of "I'll do everything that is within my power to solve the problem"?

Instead of ..., we can say "I'll do everything within my power to solve the problem"

Note that, although there are exceptions, we normally reduce defining rather than non-defining relative clauses. For example, we would not choose to reduce the (non-defining) relative clause in the following sentence: "My mother, who is taking piano lessons now, clearly has no talent".

Would we choose to reduce the relative clause in the following sentence: "My mother, who is taking piano lessons now, clearly has no talent"?

No, we wouldn't ...

Why not?

Because we normally reduce defining rather than non-defining relative clauses

Also note that, when we reduce a relative clause, we can only omit the verb "be" when the relative pronoun is the subject. For example, the sentence "The picture that is hanging on the wall looks great" can be reduced to "The picture hanging on the wall looks great" because the relative pronoun "that" is the subject. However, in the sentence "The picture that John is painting looks great", the subject of the relative clause is the word "John" (the word "that" is, in fact, the object). Therefore, we cannot reduce the relative clause by omitting the verb "be" (and so we cannot say "The picture John painting looks great").

1177 In the sentence "The picture that John is painting looks great", why can we not reduce the relative clause by omitting the verb "be"?

In ... , ... because the subject in the relative clause is the word "John", and we can only omit the verb "be" when the relative pronoun is the subject

bring about radical

Name an invention in history that brought about a radical change in the way people lived their lives. The name of ...

Writing a review

Please note: There are writing homework titles at the end of this book.

overview assessment verdict

A review:

- is a piece of writing that tells the reader about a place, event, book, film, or other product, and also gives the writer's opinions on it. We find reviews in newspapers and magazines, or on websites;
- is intended to help the reader decide if they want to buy the product, watch the film etc;
- normally contains three main parts: an overview, an assessment, and a verdict.

stand out blend portion enthusiastic

Porthole (London Bridge)

There are several new places to eat in the London Bridge area, but Porthole certainly stands out from the rest. This large restaurant, spread over two floors, overlooks the river, and is within easy walking distance of both London Bridge and Waterloo stations.

(1) Start with an overview to give the reader some basic facts about whatever you are reviewing.

Porthole serves a reasonably priced and exciting blend of European and Asian cuisines. The menu contains enough variety to satisfy most tastes, and includes an interesting range of vegetarian dishes. On my visit, both my food and that of my companion was cooked to perfection, and portions were generous.

Service is friendly and enthusiastic, although the restaurant was very busy on my visit and we had to wait patiently for our order to be taken. The only other slight negative is perhaps the drinks menu. This may well improve over time but, at the moment, the selection is rather poor. There are only two types of tea available, for example, and the wine list is somewhat limited.

(2) Include an assessment, giving your opinions, both positive and negative.

However, what will bring me back to Porthole again and again is the view. London's historic river stretches out in front of you, with the Tower of London and Tower Bridge right nearby. At night especially, the river and the buildings along its banks make a marvellous sight, and Porthole has been fitted with enormous floor-to-ceiling windows that enable diners to appreciate this fully.

(3) Give your overall verdict at the end, and recommendations if appropriate.

Overall, Porthole is a great new place. If you like restaurants with a lively atmosphere, it's the perfect choice for a casual evening out with a few friends or even a major birthday celebration. With its delicious food and wonderful views, you're guaranteed an experience to remember.

In reference to writing, what do we mean by a review?

By a review, we mean a piece of writing that tells the reader about a book, film, event or other product, and also gives the writer's opinions on it

Where do we normally find reviews? We ... in newspapers, in magazines, on websites etc.

dangle

What does the verb "dangle" mean? The verb "dangle" means to hang or swing loosely or limply

Give me an example, please. After the climbing accident, I was left dangling on the rope for more than an hour before I was rescued

topple

If a pile of plates is too high, what's likely to happen? If ..., it's likely to topple over, and the plates will smash

that's that

When do we use the expression "that's that"? We use ... to convey that a conversation, situation or process is definitely finished

Give me some examples, please. You cannot watch TV till your homework is done, and that's that!
The police know you stole the car, so that's that.
I just have to knock in one last nail and that's that.
